

Rusty's Report

In this issue:

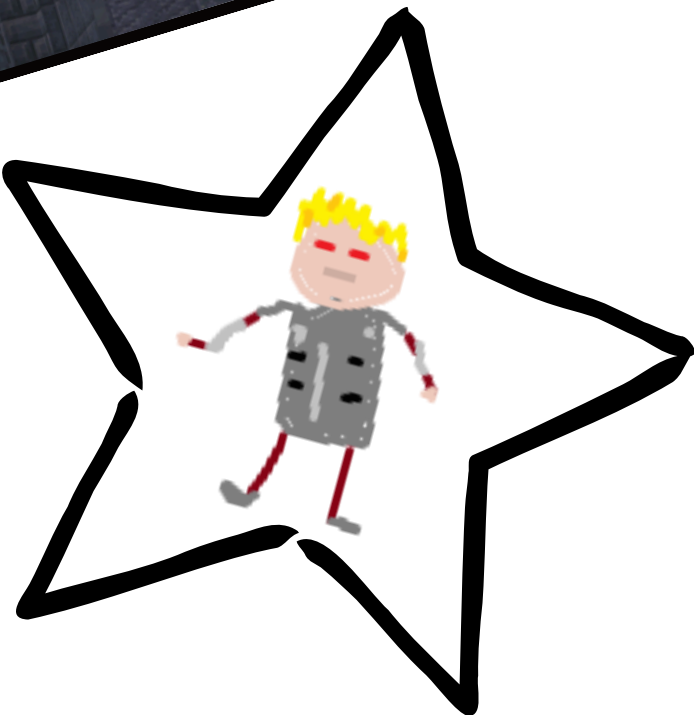

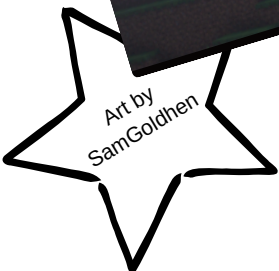

The Beauty of a Server by SilberFrost..... pg 2

Wordfindin' by Phroday..... pg 3

What it REALLY Takes to Make an Easter Event (From the Staff POV) by CptCuddlefish.....pg 4

From the Desk of the Mods..... pg 4

The Making of ZITSLand By Hashirae..... pg 5

Phroday's toy sign.

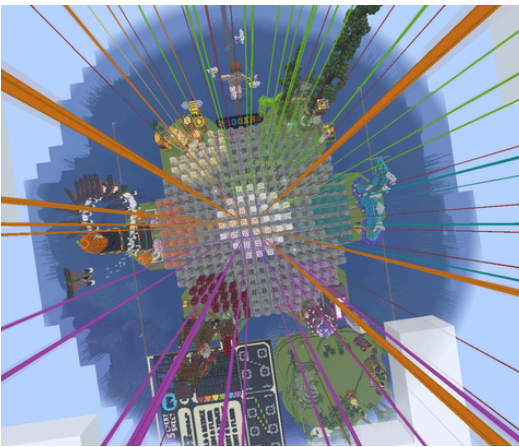

DrivenDemon's base

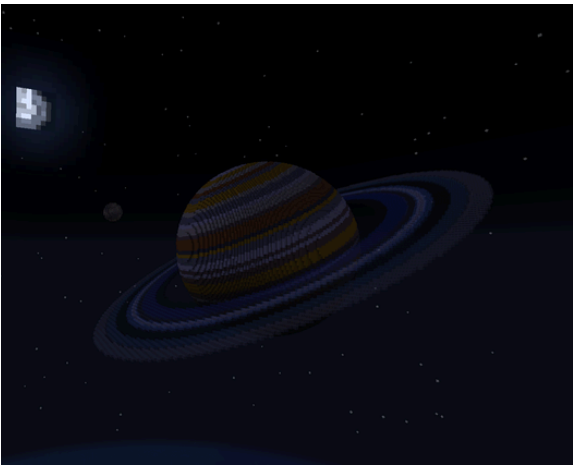

Marsmellow17's veryveryvery last map for Season 10. Pictured with JoHoste.

Hashirae's proudest build.

Bridges by Coccolithophor

BlackOccamy's planet base.

The Beauty of a Server

by SilberFrost

It's the season start, when the TPS is low,
and the fifth restart, when things still don't work quite right.
It's all the faces, both old and new,
and the frantic scattering.
It's the groups and cliques that appear,
and finding the optimal base location.

It's when the first challenges are conquered,
and the first infrastructure appears.
It's when the first tool is enchanted,
and the first perimeter is dug.
It's when the first farms stutter and clank,
and the first stores start to open.

The beauty of a server

It's when the dragon is killed, and when the shulkers roll in.
It's when the shops are really starting,
and the first caable statue stands.
It's when schematics are exchanged,
and new projects begin.

It's when the hub is done,
and minigames appear.
It's when the above opens,
and the mid-way version updates.
It's when the seasonal events happen,
and when the first big projects finish.

The beauty of a server

It's when things grow quiet,
people finish, or have quit.
It's the burnout that hits,
and realizing you bit off too much.
It's eagerly awaiting the last call,
to start it all anew.

It's when it comes to a close.
and not having been on,
with one last push,
to get it all done,
one call to the server,
and in assistance friends rush.

The beauty of a server

Is the last week of the season.
No background noise,
just walking through the builds silently,
with friends, or alone,
taking it all in, just sitting there,
and saying one last good-bye.

It's the final tour.
With powers of observation
and an unsteady voice,
a slight hint of panic,
and in a moments notice,
it all comes to an end.

The beauty of a server

It's the get-togethers, the small pranks, the first and final day.
It's the countless nights of sleep-avoidance.
It's all the friends and memories made along the way.

The beauty of a server

Is every block placed.

The beauty of Titancraft.

Is you.

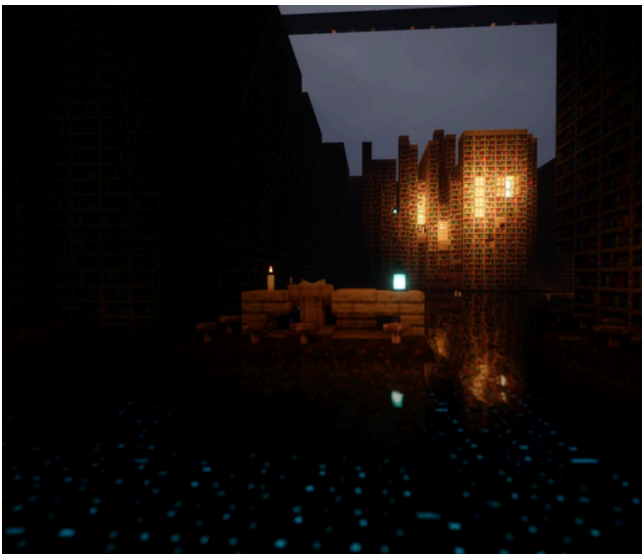

ComaCanadian's base

A group of Tango Titans.

Titancraft Botanical Gardens by BlockEngineer3

Sunken Library by TaintedSorrow

The Wandering Titan by iamFaron

Not sure who's this is but it made me smile.

ElleKitty's Garden of Idle Dreams

Today I bring you another puzzle that I am totally not ripping off from NYT Strands. It's a simple word search where you connect letters in any direction to form a word. All the words are related to the theme and one of those words is the answer to what links the other 6 words.

Play here using your mind or there's an interactive version HERE!

Titancraft Strands

Author: Anonymous | Completions: 1

THEME

Mob Repellant

N	D	R	L	B	E
E	N	O	I	A	N
E	R	D	G	C	R
H	O	F	H	O	E
C	G	T	N	C	T
I	L	I	I	A	N
L	G	N	D	N	A
T	H	G	L	E	L

Found 0/7 Words

What it REALLY Takes to Make an Easter Event (From the Staff POV)

by CptCuddlefish

Marsmellow17
Original by Villainouslegume

Bobocraft & bozib

If you thought the Easter District was a fun and colorful area this season, great! From the outside, that means the Staff Team succeeded! But behind the scenes, there is chaos! Shouting ensues, someone is crying in the corner, and everything is on fire (kidding!).

It starts long before the Easter District is open. We begin by brainstorming ideas and talking about what ideas worked (or not) from previous seasons. We knew we wanted to continue the tradition of the Easter Egg Decorating Contest. But where was the district going to go, what other activities did we want to have, when was the event going to be, and most importantly, is Tango joining? These were all things that the Staff Team discussed in the week or so before the event was to take place.

Speaking of which, we made a really big blunder when choosing the time of the Easter Event. We wanted to give everyone enough time to build and be considerate of everyone's time during the holiday. "So let's do it the weekend after Easter," we thought. We knew Tango couldn't participate at all due to a busy schedule, but Lite and I were both free for a tour. It'll be fine, right? Hah! After we decided we would have the Easter event after the Easter holiday and announced it in #server-announcements, people reminded us that it was the same day as the Hermitcraft Gamers Outreach Stream! Oh, no! There was no way we could host an Easter event at the same time, so I am glad we were able to pivot to the day before Easter, a whole week sooner. This sudden change caused a lot of panic in the Staff Team! We suddenly had to make all of the decisions in a tighter time frame.

The day of the Easter Event included some last minute rules checks, decorations, and Lite magic to make sure things went smoothly. At first the Event was supposed to be streamed by me while Lite played the Abbott to my Costello as we gave gifts (giftgiftgift!) to participants. It was a very last minute request by me to have most of the staff team join. it was really nice to have everyone riffing off each other and sharing in the event together. I feel like it brought us closer. It is always our goal for players to have a great time on the Titancraft and to help make a great community. So if you enjoyed any of our events, including this year's Easter District, please drop a thank you to a member of the Staff Team! Speaking as someone who has only recently joined the team, I now understand that this chaos makes everything run beautifully and I can't wait for next time.

RomanEmpire_1

PeachyMeadow

From the desk of the mods...

YAY, Titancraft is (finally) moving on to season 11! The Staff Team was very impressed (and concerned) by how quickly the press has gotten wind of it :P

- The World Tour is coming up this weekend. Go grab the last available slots until Friday and show Tango all the wonderful things you've created!,
- Remember that the S11 project list is a great place to recruit help for both public and private projects! If you are looking for a group to join, check out the projects already listed!
- We're thankful to everyone filling out the feedback survey. Though you may not observe an immediate effect on the server this feedback is invaluable and essential in guiding our plans for the server.
- Make sure to check out the revised server rules and FAQ when they release for S11 as there have been a number of changes.
- As usual, Staff will hold a Town Hall right before releasing the new season. It's the perfect place to learn about any significant changes/updates and you'll also be able to ask questions.

There'll be a lot of information coming your way the next couple of days/weeks, so keep an eye out for server-announcements! Ty!

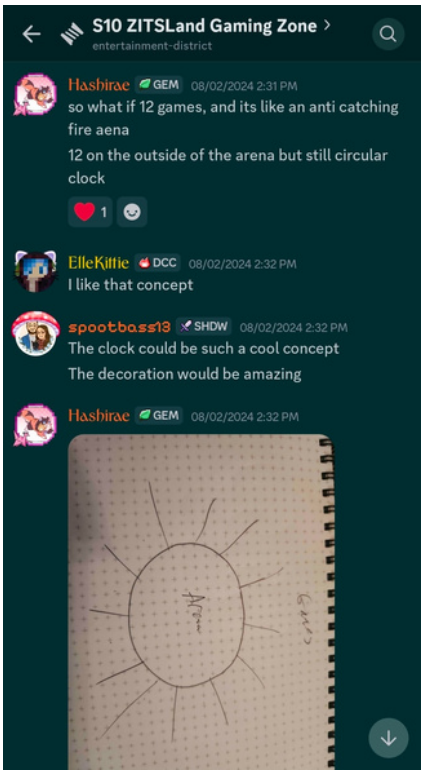

The Making of ZITSLand

By Hashirae

ZITSLand has officially hosted Zedaph, ImpulseSV, TangoTek, and Skizzleman to a smashing success. But how did it all come together?

It all started August 2nd 2024, ZITS had just completed a ZITSLympics on ISV & SKizzlecraft over the summer and a handful of Titans found themselves discussing the events over discord and lamenting how Titancraft was the last of ZITS servers to host the Hermits. And so it was decided we would build a ZITS Gaming area in the 10th Season of Titancraft.

My first step was to watch back previous ZITSLympics and take notes on various aspects including number of games, how long it took to explain, how long they took to play, anything that stood out during each game.

The observations led to the main decisions, a contained area with paths and no elytra to help make it as easy as possible to keep ZITS in the area and from getting lost. Short & easy to follow instructions to the best of the game maker's abilities, not too long a time to play each game to ensure games could get played. We then began brainstorming on how our ZITS area would look, on if we wanted to take part of the Entertainment District or claim our own area and have a nether tunnel to it and the whole kit & kaboodle. The number of games was decided to range between 8 & 10, depending on volunteers and time length and the game makers were quickly volunteering.

One gamemaker requested that we shoot for Mooshroom island to ensure no spawn proofing as a potential game idea was going to use Warden Darkness and required darkness.

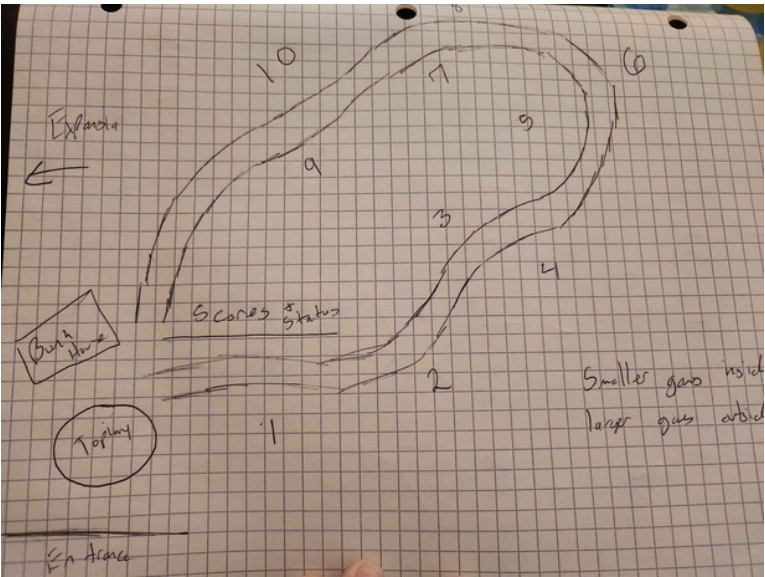

We bounced between a Catching Fire Clock/Circular Arena & amusement park as the front runners of the layout of the Games Area. We knew we wanted to also have fun things for the Titans like potentially reskinned food as pancakes, a "gift shop" etc.

The amusement park that became known as ZITSLand became the selection as the logistics of sizing of various games and plotting was calculated for the "circle" of the clock.

The next month was spent pre planning and wrangling the gamemakers to get at least a size of the game plot needed so then I could calculate and find a plot big enough for ZITSLand once season 10 had started.

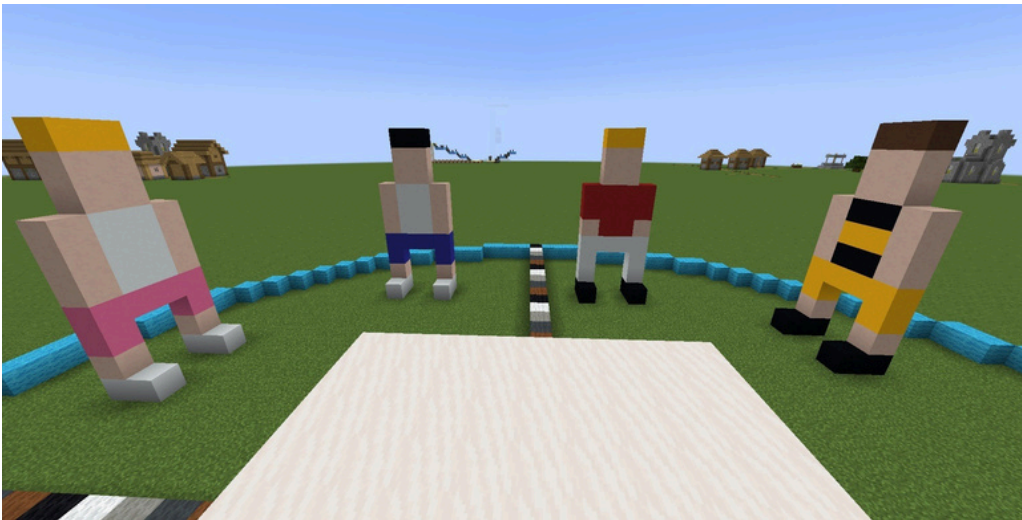

To allow everyone a stress free season 10 start, it was decided ZITSLand progress would start roughly 6-8 weeks after the season opened with a rough time estimate of 3-4 months to build, play test and finalize the games. Of course as they say, when you make plans God laughs and boy did he get plenty of chuckles from the ZITSLand timeline plans.

With the theme of Amusement Park decided, i designated each group as various jobs as you would find in an amusement park. The Park Executives were the original planning group as well as the ones who kept me from tearing my hair out or finding and in game killing the titans who were dragging their feet. An Entrance was designed by AaronasaChimp and welcoming topiary & Staff House with beds & storage system was designed by yours truly.

Once the server opened and game plot sizes were guesstimated, the layout of the Park was next.

I first tried a more round and curvy layout all starting and ending at the same spot like most major Theme Parks are, with the smaller games like boop the bulb & Disney Drop in the middle as well as the score board and potential ZITS Statues(Yes i know, they're works of art XD)

I then proceeded to find an area in the Entertainment District that would be big enough to house all the games. Once a large enough area was found, it was marked with ZITS colored concrete and mapped out. I think I proceeded to decide the layout & game order in graph paper as well as in game with cyan carpet & signs to assign locations of each game so the game makers could work to their leisure.

Some games went up immediately, shout out Wired & Phroday while others had things like builders block and finicky redstone cause some delays. But we eventually got everything built and then play testing began. One year after the initial kick off, the ZITS Group had a field day to do first round testing of the games with mods invited. Notes were given and applied to various Games and multiple rounds of secondary testing and playing were done until finally in late October 2025 ZITSLand was deemed ready to be offered to Tango. Then it became a waiting game of ZITS being able to schedule time. In that time Hermitcraft started season 11 and multiple big holidays came and went, when suddenly on March 21st TangoTek posted in Server Announcements that the time had come and on April 1st ZITS would be coming to Titancraft.

And I must say, it was a Smashing Success. I want to thank all of the ZITSLand volunteers, the gamemakers, the staff, mods and all the Titans who helped shape the park and the event itself for a banging ZITSLympics.

